

Northwestern Construction

Clackamas Community College, Wilsonville Training Center Expansion

May 2002

DPR Construction is the general contractor for an addition at Clackamas Community College's Wilsonville, Ore., campus.

The addition includes a 5,000-sq.-ft. remodel of existing training facility classrooms and offices, plus the addition of an 8,6000-sq.-ft., 1-story industrial training workshop and a 2-story, 23,000-sq.-ft. space with classrooms, administrative office and student gathering space.

During much of the six months DPR had to complete the project, school was in session. Crews also coordinated with the college's associate owners, Pacificorp and Portland General Electric. The team was able to address all incomplete items before the substantial completion date, earning the project a "zero defects" designation.